

WTECH_B PROJECT: SNEAKYZZ – sneaker(shoes) online shop

For the first faze of the project we had to choose a domain for our future online shop, as well as create a Low-Fi version of the webpages in Figma and Hi-Fi by doing responsive webpages in HTML and CSS. In addition we had to do a diagram of physical data model of our relation database in UML notation.

As part of the second phase of the project, we implemented a fully functional e-shop with both a customer-facing and an administrator section. On the customer side, we created a product list with filtering, sorting, and pagination options, detailed product information, full-text search, and a fully functional shopping cart (adding/removing items, changing quantities, selecting shipping and payment methods, and verifying personal information). We ensured shopping cart portability between logged-in and logged-out users and basic customer management (registration, login, logout). In the admin section, we implemented login with the ADMIN role, complete CRUD product management including uploading and deleting images, use of dropdown menus (e.g., color), and the ability to edit products with a list of images to be removed.

For database we used default for Laravel projects - SQLite

For project we used: Figma for creating sketches for our design, JetBrains PhpStorm for HTML , CSS, JS and PHP code.

DIAGRAM OF PHYSICAL DATA MODEL OF RELATION DATABASE

For our database we defined key entities: User, Order, Product, Category. We created a Shoe table to keep information about various variants of product(size, color) and reference this table to create an OrderItem in order table. Order will contain info about order, if user is registered in the shop, it will take the important info from his account to create an order, if not, user will fill out them in cart payment. Also Order references a shop, in case the user want the product to be delivered at shop, and checks if order will be payed by card or in cash. Order will also have statuses: CART – when in passive state(order is not created), PENDING – when user is in the payment process and PAID – when the order is confirmed. In database it is represented by interger(0 – CART, 1 – PENDING, 2 - PAID).Order history will be displayed at My Orders page. User will have a Liked page which will contain liked products. Product will have a category or multiple categories.

In the updated version of our database since the 1st phase, we removed the Liked table because we didn't need to address the issue of favorite products in our project. We also added the Images table, which references a specific product variant based on its color, meaning that each product with a specific color will have at least two or more assigned photos (we add these photos from the admin panel), they are stored in the storage/public/shoes folder in Laravel project. Additionally, we added the created_at and updated_at fields to our database, and we added the price field to the product table.

Design Decisions

We used the Spatie library to assign roles to users—specifically, “user” and ‘admin’—and to create permissions for the admin, such as the ability to edit, create, and delete products. Additionally, during login, we verify that the logged-in user does not have the “admin” role.

Brief description of the implementation of selected use cases

Login

Any user can create an account; after entering their login credentials, they can log in to their account. When a user logs in, an unregistered user's shopping cart is merged with their account, so they don't have to add the products to the cart again.

Search

There is a search bar in the header of our website. When a user searches for a product that suits their needs, they can do so using three criteria: product_code, product name, or origin country. If the user does not enter any text and clicks the search button, they will be redirected to the home page; otherwise, the query will be sent to the database, and the page will display the results or a message stating that no results were found. The search text is processed case insensitively.

Pagination

To create product pages, we use a Laravel function called `paginate()`. We divide the products into pages, each containing 12 products. We then display these pages on the category page. The first and last pages are always shown. If the user is on a specific page, that page is displayed as disabled.

Basic filtering

When a user selects a category to view the available products within it, or wants to find specific products, the following filtering options are available: by price (the user selects a minimum and maximum price, if desired), by shoe size (as well as by price), by brand (the user selects one of the available brands). The user can also filter search results by price (ascending or descending).

Add product to cart Search

When a customer is on the product page, they select the desired color and size and then enter the desired quantity. If the quantity exceeds the available stock, the page will not allow that quantity to be entered and will limit it to the maximum available quantity; the customer then clicks the "Add to Cart" button. A new record is added to the OrderItem table, and if the Order does not exist, a new one is created.

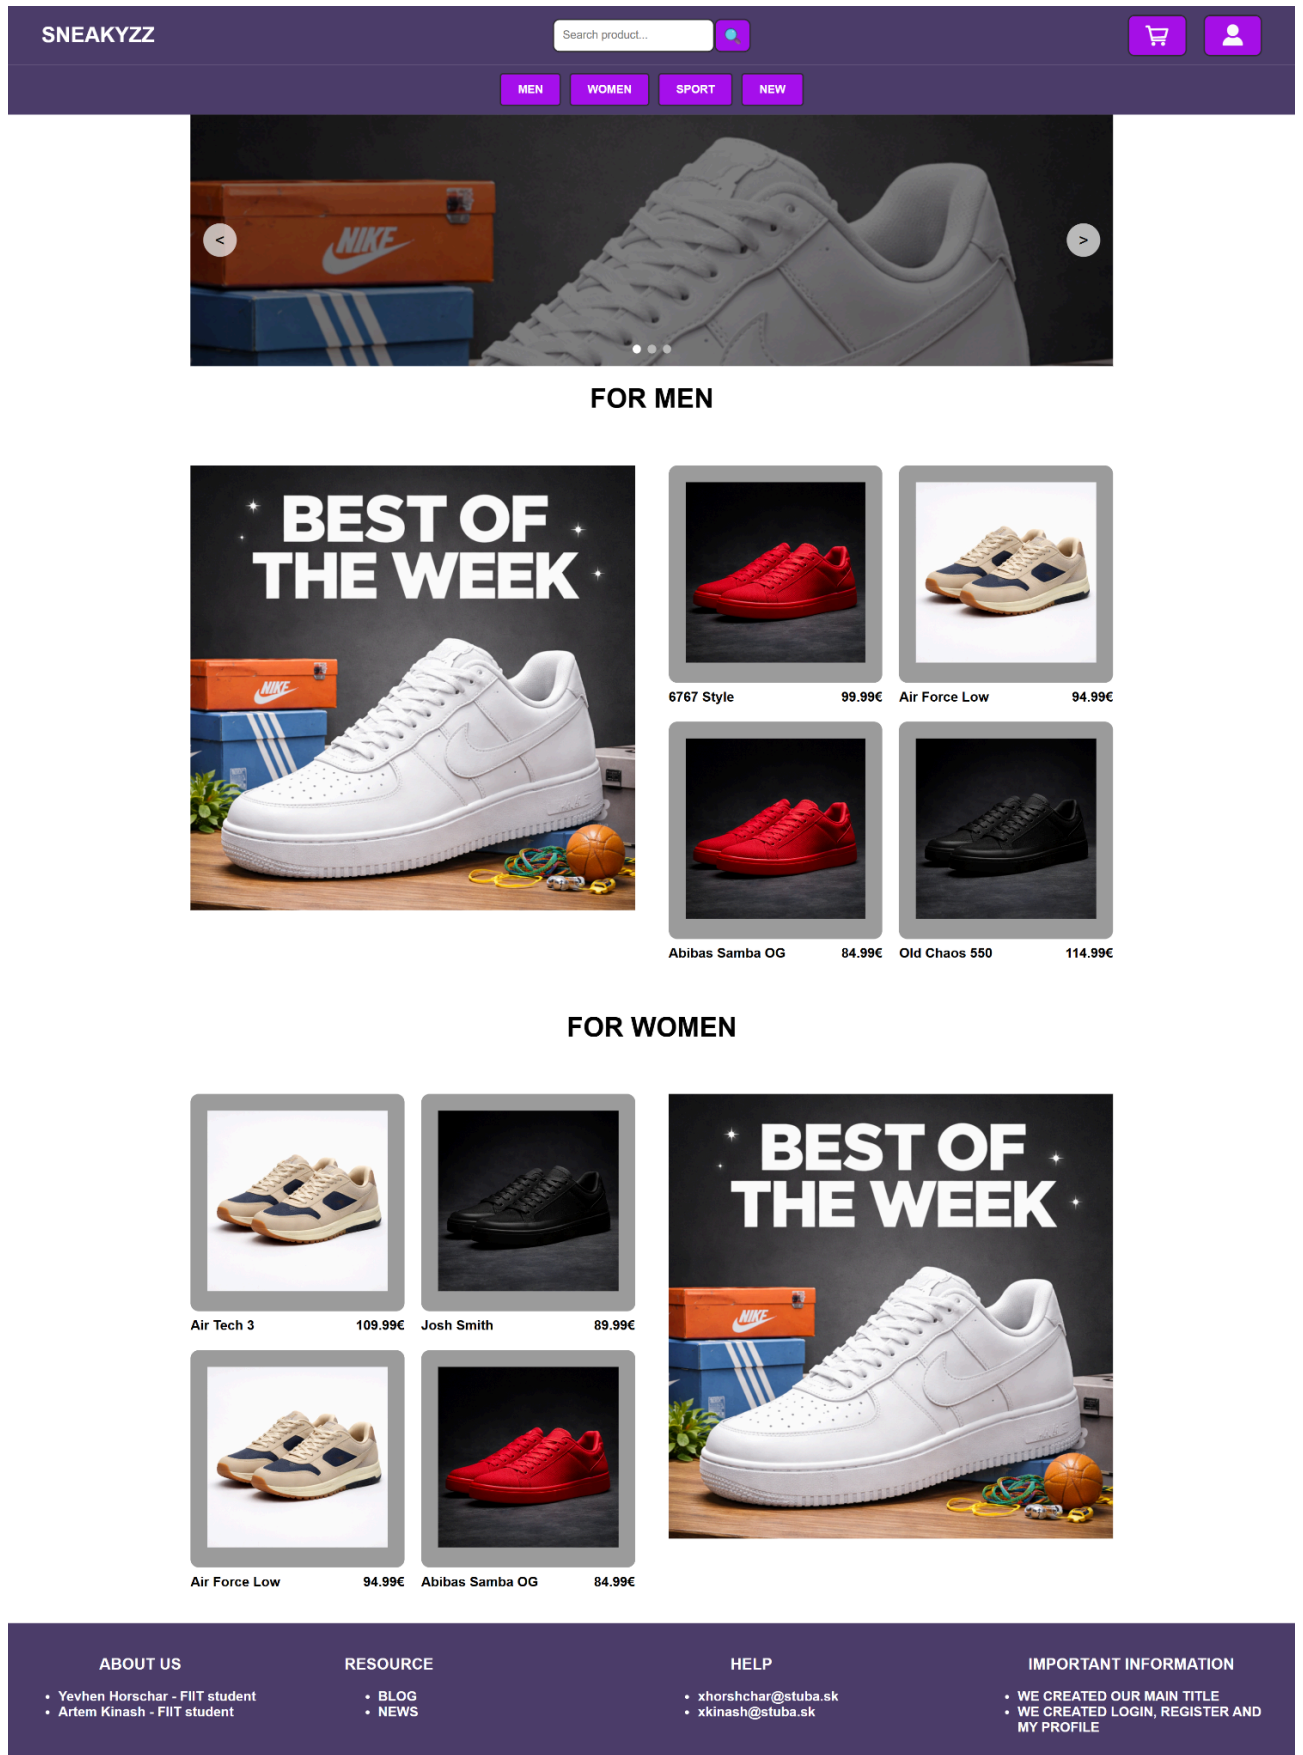

Change the quantity for this product

In the shopping cart, the user can change the quantity of the desired item; however, if this quantity exceeds the available stock, the site will not allow such a quantity to be entered and will limit it to the maximum available quantity; the user can also remove the item from the cart if necessary.
